In thermodynamics, a critical point (or critical state) is the end point of a phase equilibrium curve. The most prominent example is the liquid-vapor critical point, the end point of the pressure-temperature curve that designates conditions under which a liquid and its vapor can coexist.

A metal ion in aqueous solution (aqua ion) is a cation, dissolved in water, of chemical formula $[M(H_2O)_n]^{z+}$. The solvation number, n , determined by a variety of experimental methods is 4 for Li^+ and Be^{2+} and 6 for elements in periods 3 and 4 of the periodic table.

Compared with other fossil fuels, natural gas is a cost-effective feed for making hydrogen, in part because it is widely available, is easy to handle, and has a high hydrogen-to-carbon ratio, which minimizes the formation of by-product CO₂.

An Introduction to Chemistry by Mark Bishop. There are two versions of this current textbook, both containing the same information but organized differently: the "Chemistry-first" version begins with actual "chemistry" — that is, chemical equations and reactions.

A perovskite solar cell based on ZnO nanorods was prepared, and its photovoltaic performance was investigated. ZnO nanorods were grown on the ZnO seed layer from solution, and their diameters and lengths were controlled by precursor concentration and growth time.
